FIELD GUIDE

ON HARMFUL AND USEFUL ORGANISMS
IN PHILIPPINE RICE FIELDS

INSECTS AND NON-INSECTS
REVISED EDITION

Foreword

With the Rice Competitiveness Enhancement Fund - Rice Extension Services Program (RCEF-RESP) that DA-PhilRice co-implements, we see it imperative to equip agricultural technologists and other stakeholders with skill and knowledge on pest management. An integral part of managing rice enemies is pest sampling.

Through RCEF-RESP, agricultural technologists and farmers are trained on PalayCheck system – an integrated rice crop management system that presents the best key technology and management practices as Key Checks. Specifically, Key Check 7 in this system highlights the interaction of the rice crop with biotic factors and the agroecosystem and presents the correct identification of pests and application of ecologically sound strategies to prevent pest damages caused by pests.

Our Crop Protection Division has mastered the techniques discussed in this field guide, which can help farmers decide on how to manage pests. This field guide outlines all the advantages and disadvantages of each technique in helping the end-users choose which one is suited for a specific condition. This guide was also used as basis of the Pest Risk Identification and Management (PRIME) project, which aims to recognize the risk factors for pest outbreaks and identify efficient management strategies and approaches to reduce crop losses.

We hope that this field guide helps rice pest managers toward effective pest management through the use of appropriate techniques and devices.
